EXPLANATIONS.

□ ◊ ◊ ◊ ◊ ◊ ◊ ◊ ◊ ◊ These geographical indicators, which are placed immediately after the names of the counties, designate the relative position of the counties in their respective States, Territories or Provinces, the centre of each being used as a basis. They were devised and copyrighted by Joseph M. Toner, M. D., of Washington, D. C., and are used by authority of a contract with him.

The population figures marked with a dagger † are from the census of 1880, all others are from more recent estimates by resident publishers or postmasters.

Publications known to be bought and circulated mainly by persons and firms advertising therein by means of descriptive articles in the reading columns; or devoted to the (almost) exclusive advertising of any particular person or firm, or the advertising of any certain idea; or established solely as advertising schemes; embracing a class with circulations very largely gratuitous; are termed "advertising sheets," and no circulation rating is given.

In cases in which no advertisements are taken for a publication, the circulation rating, being of no importance to advertisers, has been omitted; and in its place are inserted the words: "does not insert advertisements."

From Publishers of Newspapers who furnish information upon which the circulation rating may be based, a memorandum is asked of the actual date and issues of each number of the paper for the preceding three months. Each publisher sending such a report is requested to make it as definite and exact, as to dates and figures, as he would require from a rival publisher, were a comparison, based upon the two reports, to be instituted between the two papers.

Small engravings of newspaper buildings on solid metal bodies, occupying space of one inch in length or width, and no more, subject to approval on inspection, are inserted with the description of the paper without any charge. The Crosscup & West Engraving Co., No. 702 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, are good parties to furnish the engravings required, and have made all, or nearly all, which now appear in the book.

The DIRECTORY is issued annually. The work upon its revision proceeds all the time. Advertisers, Publishers and the public are entreated to lend their aid by calling attention to its shortcomings. The book can never be made perfect, but no pains will be spared to sustain the position which it has attained in the good opinion of advertisers and publishers.

DETROIT, C. H., Wayne Co., □ 152,000 pop., and the great emporium of Michigan, on Detroit r., 18 m. from Lake Erie, having one of the finest harbors on the lakes. A city of great commercial importance, being connected by railroads with the principal points West, and by means of the lakes and railroads with the East, and points of trade and commerce throughout Canada and the region bordering on the Great Lakes. Several railroads have their termination at this point, and the lake marine that passes Detroit has a tonnage equal to the entire ocean marine of the United States. Immense quantities of grain, pork, wool and copper ore are shipped from here to Eastern markets. The manufactures are extensive and various; railroad cars, iron, boots and shoes, fine cut tobacco and segars are among the most important. The working and developing of the copper and iron mines of Michigan bordering on Lake Superior, has created an extensive trade with that region, and several lines of large steamers are actively engaged in the trade.
